RIVOLI WEDNESDAY ONLY

One of the most interesting scenes in "God's Crucible," the picture of Ralph Connor's novel, "The Foreigner," which is released beneath the Rivoli banner, takes place in a cave where the hero—admirably played by Gaston Glass—discovers coal and thereby attains to the financial independence which makes it possible for him to sue for the hand of the beautiful Gladys Coburn. This scene is exactly as the author described it when he wrote the story and is an absolutely true version of the exact way in which coal was discovered in the famous anthracite mines in Canada.

When the scene was being filmed, in fact when all the mine scenes were being filmed, the officials of the company who were desirous of helping to the limit of their power, showed their anxiety to cooperate by declaring a half holiday in the mine so that Director Martin and his company of players could work unhindered. They went even further by offering the services of the miners employed who entered into the spirit of the thing so admirably that the scenes in "God's Crucible," which show the coal mine in full blast are marvelous of technical perfection.

"God's Crucible" will be shown at the Rivoli Theatre Wednesday only.

ALTA TODAY

"Babe" Ruth, than whom there is no more popular man in the country today, has proved himself as great an attraction on the screen as he is on the ball field. The "Colossus of the Swat," the man who hung up a record of fifty four home runs during the past baseball season, is soon to be seen at the Alta Theatre in his picture "Headin' Home" that scored such a tremendous success recently at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

In "Headin' Home," "Babe" Ruth is presented as a boy in a small town who is devoted to baseball and during one of the sand lot games is so unfortunate as to send one of his drives through the window of a church. For this he is actually driven out of the town and at a time when a "city chap" is beginning to look with favor on "Babe's" sweetheart.

However, he takes with him the sneer of this same city chap who predicts that he will make a name for himself in baseball if he sticks to the "peanut selling" game. It so happens that "Babe" does make good and many of the scenes of the big production show the famous Home Run King in action on the diamond, scenes that have proved as interesting and entertaining to the ladies as they have to the men.

"Headin' Home" is a homey, wholesome story of a boy's life. It is the sort of photoplay that makes a true human interest appeal. It is right under the skin because of its true to life characterizations and its particularly fine dramatic incidents. It is without doubt, the most talked about picture of the age, having been accorded more than the usual amount of attention by the dramatic critics of the Metropolitan dailies who awarded it the highest praise.

The entertainment of "Headin' Home" at the Alta Theatre is for a limited time only and the picture was specially booked by the management because of numberless requests that followers of baseball and motion pictures be given an opportunity to see the entertaining feature.

For Raw Sore Throat

At the first sign of a raw, sore throat rub on a little Musterole with your fingers.

It goes right to the spot with a gentle tingle, loosens congestion, draws out soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It has all the strength of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Nothing like Musterole for croupy children. Keep it handy for instant use. 35 and 65 cents in jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.
